Rabbi's Message

One Friday morning last month, I watched in frustration as the snow and sleet once again foiled our plans to worship together. Another Torah portion not read and sermon not given, I thought. Yet even while I was busy grumbling to myself, I also experienced a moment of gratitude when I recalled that a conversation about wintry weather had been the final deciding factor for me in my becoming the rabbi of this congregation ten years ago. The discussion was with members of the Rabbinic Search Committee and it went something like this: "When the weather is bad, we cancel services. "We don't want people risking their lives to come to the Center. And even if the weather in Washington is clear but the weather by you is snowy, Rabbi, we want you to stay home and be safe."

You may think that it just makes sense to be concerned about the safety of rabbi and congregants alike, but I did not take it for granted. It spoke volumes to me about the character of this congregation. I had worked previously in congregations that took pride in never canceling services. What that meant, I discovered, was that the rabbi, cantor and organist were expected to brave blizzards that kept sane congregants home. One day as I skidded down a hill on my way to the temple, I asked myself, "Is it worth risking my life to get to the Temple? If our tradition values life above all else, what am I doing in my car today?" In that moment, I knew I needed to be in a congregation that valued life above worship. That is what I found in the Jewish Center of Northwest Jersey.

That is not to say that Jewish life should stop because of snow. Even if we can't worship together, Shabbat and study still continue. I recently read a column describing strategies

President's Message

As I wake early each morning to go to work, I realize that today is going to be a great. What does a great day mean to me? It means the opportunity to help other people. It can be as simple as just saying good morning to everyone I meet, or saying something nice to them and maybe getting them to smile. In my job as a computer specialist, people often call me and preface their questions with something like, "I am sorry to bother you." I always answer in the same tone, "I am here to help you." It means being as pleasant as I can to everyone that day. I received an email this week about a man who was always positive and cheerful, almost to the point where people were annoyed at him for being too cheerful. The man said that "I get to make choices every day. I can choose to be cheerful or not. I can choose how I react to any given situation." This man had a serious accident and when people visited him in the hospital, he was still the same cheerful person he had always been. One of the beauties of being a human is that we get to make conscious choices. We can choose to let our situation get us down, or we can be grateful for all of the things that we do have.

One of the things that I get to see as President is how each of you is making those choices regarding the Jewish Center. I am extremely proud of the choices that are made on a consistent basis. It reflects so well on our past leadership and all of you that I see so much good coming out of this congregation.

On the 12th of March, we have a special treat for all of you. One of Rabbi Lewis' friends, a cantorial student named Marcy Kadin, will join us for Shabbat Across America and sing a few selections. I hope that you all get a chance to hear her magnificent voice.

Shalom,
Howie Hirsch

for parental success that included this recommendation: "Don't outsource parenting. The fact that you're not a professional athlete doesn't mean you're not the best person to teach softball." I loved the phrase, "Don't outsource parenting," and thought about the many times I have searched for an eloquent way to say, "Don't outsource being a Jew. That fact that you're not a rabbi doesn't mean you're not the best person to teach Judaism." Our busy lives force us to delegate so much these days. Coming to the Center is not the only way to live a Jewish life. You don't have to know Hebrew to pray; you don't even have to know Hebrew to sit with your child while he or she practices reading Hebrew. You don't have to be a scholar to make the your homes a source of Jewish love, learning and practice.

It doesn't take a rabbi to know when to cancel services. What's more, when the leaders of our Center cancel services, the decision is a very Jewish one. It is a decision that doesn't "outsource" Jewish decision-making; rather, it affirms the value of life both inside and outside our Temple. So on those days and nights when we are not together, say a prayer of gratitude for life and a word of appreciation for our thoughtful leadership.

Looking forward to spring,

Rabbi Ellen J. Lewis

Upcoming Adult Education Programs

Torah Study - If line-by-line (and sometimes word-by-word) textual study interests you, come join us one Saturday morning per month, 10:30 to noon or thereabouts, on the following dates: March 27, April 24, May 22, and June 12. If you would like more information, call Sharon Herson.

Education Committee and PTO News

Don't miss the Purim Carnival on Sunday, March 7 at noon. We're asking each parent to bring baked goods to be sold at the Purim bake sale. Set-up this year will be Saturday, March 6 at 6:30 p.m. Come for fun and pizza!

Come to the Bridgewater JCC Sunday, March 21, 1:00-4:00pm! Sunday School and Confirmation students will be able to swim and use the gym. Cost is $5 per person. Transportation will be the responsibility of the parents. Return response forms to Lisa Bauch by March 7.

Shoprite/A&P Vouchers

We would like to remind everyone that in addition to dues, in 2003/2004 all family memberships in the Temple are required either to purchase $2,000 worth of A&P/ShopRite scrip or pay an additional $100 in dues. The deadline for this obligation is April 1. Please call Sandy Seidorf to purchase scrip, or mail the $100 to the Treasurer Paul May.

ShopRite/A&P scrip can be purchased at Sunday School/Confirmation Class on March 7, 21, April 4, 18, May 2, 16.

Bring a tasty dairy dish to share with all

For info and reservations, call the Temple

SERVICE BEGINS AT 6:30PM

Joining us for Shabbat Across America will be cantorial student Marcy Kadin. Marcy Kadin has a BM from the Hartt College of Music and an MA in voice from the College Conservatory of Music of the University of Cincinnati. She has sung operas, oratorios and other choral works over the years and presently is a soloist with two Jewish choirs, the Zamir Chorale in New York and Shirah, a community choir of the JCC in the Palisades, both of which are conducted by Matti Lazar.

The JCC will be running a one-day membership special on Sunday, March 7. New members who join on that day can save up to $200 when the JCC waives the Joiner Fee (some restrictions apply). Tours will be available. Call the JCC office at 908-725-6994 for membership rates and information.

Renaissance Group

The annual meeting of the URJ-NJ/WHV Council Renaissance Coalition will be held on Sunday, March 28, 10:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. at Temple Beth Tikvah in Wayne. The Renaissance movement started in 1990 to meet the changing social, education, and lifestyle needs of "empty nesters." Renaissance programs offer older congregants an opportunity to explore new interests and friendships within their congregation. If you would like to learn more about the Renaissance program and possibly bring it to the Jewish Center, please let Howie know, and respond by March 22 to Barbara Kaufman, Renaissance Coalition Coordinator at 201-385-8433.

Calling all Bikers

This March 21-25, the Israel Movement for Progressive Judaism is sponsoring its first annual bike ride in Israel - a five-day, 220-mile trek from Nahariya, Israel's northernmost seashore town, to Jerusalem. Riders are welcome-but you can also adopt a rider, thus helping raise funds for the educational programs in Israel. Visit www.riding4reform.org, or contact the IMPJ at riding4reform@impj.org.

HATZLACHA.COM

www.hatzlacha.com is an employment and career job site that aims to efficiently match up corporate and non corporate employers with job seekers of the Jewish work force. HATZLACHA.COM maintains a database with more than 10,000 job ads. Browse and search by job category or location to match specific professional skills and personal characteristics, with a database of several thousand job seekers, and prospective employees who signed up to receive automated suitable e-alerts of new job opportunities within predefined categories.
