Rabbi's Message

It is fifteen years since Yitzhak Rabin was assassinated in Tel Aviv after attending a peace demonstration. It hardly seems that long ago. Last week, many in Israel observed the Hebrew yearzeit date of Oct. 20 as the anniversary of his death. Israel will also remember him on Nov. 4, the secular date of his death, with a mass rally in Tel Aviv in the square where Rabin was gunned down.

If all goes according to plan, I will be in Israel on that day, although, by that time, we will have left Tel Aviv and will have arrived in Jerusalem. I will carry with me the tzedakah entrusted to me by family and friends. I will also carry with me their prayers. And I will recite a prayer that appears in a book by Larry Hoffman (Israel: A Spiritual Travel Guide):

God make me a messenger for those I love.
Let me carry their prayers as if they were my own,
and leave them there, softly,
like bird's eggs, nesting in the crack of a wall,
awaiting the time for all they contain
to break out into joyous birth.
God grant me, too,
The merit to carry the means to Israel's redemption.
Until such time as we see the end of days,
God make me a witness to history.
May I revel in its glories,
And relieve its pains.
In some small way, let this, my journey,
Awaken hope in those I love and those I barely know,
The people among whom I walk in the days ahead.

It is impossible to make a visit to Israel without thinking about whether Israel will ever see peace. There are those who believe that, had Rabin lived, peace would have come to Israel. That is something we will never know. But we do know that that old soldier Rabin sang a peace song with the crowd that day that was to be his last. Shir LaShalom, A Song for Peace, has become an anthem for the peace movement in Israel. The chorus goes like this:

Come on and sing a song for peace;
don't whisper us a prayer.
Better to sing a song for peace.
Let shouting fill the air!

Ken yehi ratzon, may it be God's will.
Rabbi Ellen Lewis

President's Message

This month I want to quote a couple of passages from Pirke Avot, the ethics of the fathers. This book has been the basis of the adult education class for years. The first quote is from Ben Zoma, who says, "Who is rich? He who is happy with what he has." This is a wonderful definition of what it means to be satisfied with what one has in life. And Hillel says "If I am not for myself, who will be for me? But if I am only for myself, what am I?"

My impression of these two quotes is the following: While it is acceptable to be satisfied with what you have in life, it is not acceptable to not give back and help out those who are less fortunate than you. And no matter how bad you think things are going for you at the moment, there are folks out there who have far less than you do. And also, unless your name is Bill Gates, there is someone with more material wealth than you have. So that puts us all somewhere in the middle between rich and poor. The one thing that you do have control of in your life is your attitude. So when you wake up in the morning, think about how you can improve the life of someone else that day. To quote the Boy Scout Slogan, "Do a good turn daily".

As your president, I ask you to commit yourself for one week this month to do something nice for someone else, whether it is someone in your family, someone at your workplace, someone in your class, your coach or teammate, or a stranger on the street. Smile at someone as you pass them. Offer to assist someone who looks like they could use a hand. Work in a soup kitchen. Deliver a meal to someone who is ill. Phone a friend or family member that you have lost touch with. Or something else that is meaningful to you. Remember that a simple random act of kindness spreads like wildfire.

I think that as you do things for other people, you will end up helping yourself. Let's be part of the world that we can truly be proud of.

So to return to the initial quotes, enjoy what you have, kvell with your family and friends and reach out to others.

Shalom

Love,
Howie

A Message from the Sisterhood

I have to confess that when I dreamed of what a sisterhood would be like at the JCNWJ, never in my wildest dreams did I envision the group of devoted and dynamic women that our sisterhood has become. (I am feeling a little fa- chlempf). You have risen to every occasion with honor!

The Mitzvah Day was proof that there are still people in this world, even in these difficult times, that place others before themselves. Mench is the only word in Hebrew that I know that comes close. Thank you, not only from myself, but from our neighbors who were able to provide healthy food to their families, due to your selflessness! Be proud of the role model that you are for your own children and one day they will pass on your legacy of mitzvot.

As for the unbelievably hard working and dedicated people who made the rummage sale possible, I have no words! The event was bittersweet. It required alot of preparation and hard work but paid off in spades. Not only did we raise $1,204.00 for the Temple, but once again we came together as a family and accomplished a major feat.

I would like to thank the Rummage Sale Committee who planned and executed this fund raiser from soup to nuts with a standard of excellence! I would especially like to thank Marci Braunstein, Iris Hirsch and Gerri Klein who gave of themselves and went far and above to make sure that this event was a success!

I believe that "someone up there" is proud of the work that you are doing for our temple and the community. I know that I am. Thank you for going beyond my greatest expectations!

Rochelle Ostenfeld

JCNWJ Sisterhood President
