

Dear Friends,

I write this note to you filled with gratitude and admiration for my JCNWJ family. Many of you, I know, are aware that as the spiritual leader of this community, I am blessed with a Rabbi's Discretionary Fund, out of which I make donations to worthy causes in need of support. The reason I know many of you are aware of this is because many of you have taken it upon yourselves to donate personally to it. What you may not know, however, is that the Rabbi's Discretionary fund is fed not only by individual donations, but also by a $400 contribution each and every year from the general operating budget of the JCNWJ, which means, of course, that the fund from which I support worthy causes belongs not only to those of you who earmark specific donations, but to every member of the temple family, because a portion of the dues from every member is included.

Moses Maimonides taught in his monumental code of Jewish Law, Mishneh Torah (written between 1170-1180 CE) that "A person who compels others to give charity and motivates them to do so receives a greater reward than the person who actually gives."

With Maimonides in mind, it's clear to me that each and every one of you should stand proud that your money has indeed "compelled me to give charity and motivated me." As such, the entire JCNWJ community is deserving of great reward.

So as to offer you fuller understanding of what your funds have accomplished, I am including here a comprehensive list of the organizations to whom I donated discretionary fund money in 2022.

RABBIS FOR HUMAN RIGHTS

Rabbis for Human Rights (RHR) is an Israeli organization, active in three main areas – work within and about the Occupied Territories; work to promote social and economic justice within Israel; and activities in the fields of education and interreligious dialogue. RHR was founded in 1988 in response to contraventions of human rights taking place in the Occupied Territories. Since its inception, its activities have expanded to include:

- To articulate a vision of justice rooted in Jewish tradition, in the spirit of the Rabbinical teaching that all persons are created in God's image
- To act in order to prevent violations of human rights taking place within Israel and in the Occupied Territories
- To further a vision of Judaism sanctifying life, justice and equality and to increase awareness of this vision within Israeli society
- To further these values on the basis of constant engagement with Jewish tradition

We are guided by the richness of Jewish tradition, and by the call to advance the dignity and protect the rights of all individuals which we find at its heart. This reading of Judaism informs our activities in a variety of fields. It emboldens us to try wherever possible to influence government policy, to hold the State of Israel to live up to its vision and its responsibility: to defend the weak and the downtrodden in society regardless of race, religion, affiliation or orientation. We strive to live in an Israel true to the call of the prophets of old, and the spirit of Israel's Declaration of Independence.

I am always looking to expand the list of organizations that receive our help.

L'Shalom, and Todah,
